

SAFE AND EFFICIENT BOOKING FOR CORRECTIONS OFFICERS

SMART PUBLIC SAFETY SOLUTIONS TO FIT YOUR NEEDS

CREATING A SEAMLESS FLOW OF INFORMATION FROM POLICE OFFICERS TO CORRECTIONS OFFICERS

A day in the life of a correction officers can be filled with stress, overwork and a need for constant security. The pressure to strive for quality leadership when dealing with inmates is at an all time high and scrutiny.

When fights break out during lunchtime, officers need to quickly evaluate the situation and make the best plan towards resolving the situation in a timely manner. They need to have the ability to handle the uncertainty – at any given moment – the ability to process information quickly weigh the situation with instinct and quickly take action.

MORE INMATES, FEWER OFFICERS AND A GROWING NEED FOR INFORMATION

Of all of the jobs in public safety, jail management is one of the most difficult, dangerous and underfunded. Budgets are getting smaller, inmate populations are growing larger and more diverse, and officer-to-inmate ratios continue to shrink.

To make this difficult job even harder, the need for accurate inmate tracking information becomes more important every day. For officer and inmate safety, it is critical to ensure violent and low-risk inmates aren't accidentally housed together or that juveniles aren't accidentally placed with the adult population. Likewise it is important that some inmates like co-defendants or rival gang members are kept separate and are never moved together.

As facility population grows and officer-to-inmate ratios shrink, the need for fast and accurate inmate tracking information becomes more critical. To effectively manage the high volume, critical demands of daily operations, corrections officers need a comprehensive jail management solution that is intuitive, user-friendly and configurable to work the way they do.

GAME ON

It was State vs. the U and the 60,000-seat stadium was packed. All of the emergency services in the area – police, fire and EMS – were ready for what promised to be a busy afternoon. During the event police were able to quickly resolve a lost child; an interstate accident and potentially dangerous hazmat situation was sorted out; a possibly violent protest was kept peaceful, and troublemakers were detained.

Responses to incidents on game day were timely, appropriate and seamless. Multiple agencies – police, fire, EMS, public works and federal agencies – were able to work with citizens and each other using smarter technologies so fans could focus on the game and having fun without being worried about safety.

TRAFFIC STOP TURNED ARREST

An arrest had been made simultaneously to the occurring game in a neighboring jurisdiction.

At the county jail where the suspect was taken, the Corrections Officer was able to use PremierOne Records to gather the information from the arrest and also was alerted that individual was affiliated with the protest group who were kept under control that day at the stadium.

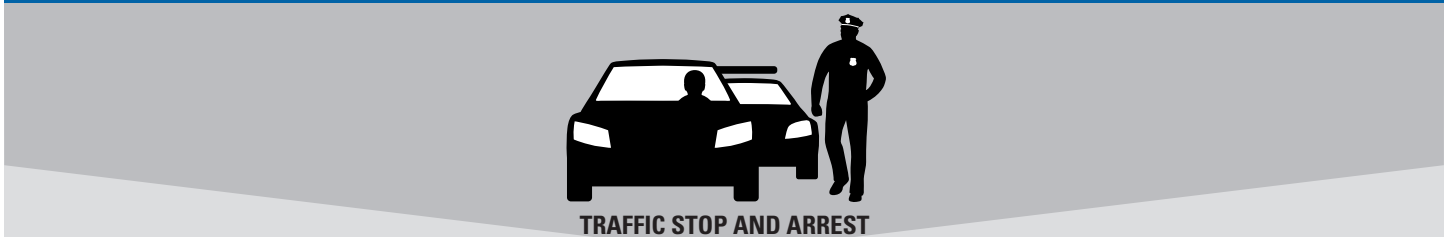

Using PremierOne Jail, the Corrections Officer received a notification order to keep the individual separate from another location where other suspected group members affiliated with the ongoing investigation were being held. After booking the offender, Corrections Officer was able to create movement schedule ahead of time to ensure accurate transfers. This information became immediately available to the detective in the midst of continuing to build his profile of the extremist group.
